The Lord executeth righteousness and judgment for all that are oppressed.

He made known His ways unto Moses, His Acts unto the children of Israel.

The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy.

He will not always chide; neither will He keep His anger for ever.

He hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities.

For as the heaven is high above the earth, so great is His mercy toward them that fear Him.

ROYAL VISIT - 21st July 1959

The location requested for Scouts, Guides, Cubs and Brownies has now been approved by The Mayor of Wainwright and his Committee and a notice has been inserted in the Star Chronicle so that all parents, etc., will be made aware of it.

All Leaders, Troops and Packs are to assemble on that point of ground west of Parkview Road and east of the Wainwright Refineries bounded on the south by 1st Avenue and on the east by Parkview Road.

Time of assembly will be 3:30 p.m.

District Commissioner's Meeting will be on the same location at 4 p.m.

Instructions have been passed on to me from Provincial Council that it is necessary that all Leaders, Scouts, Guides, Cubs and Brownies who participate in using the Royal Route must wear full uniform, i.e. shorts and socks for Scouts, Scouts and Cubs. It is therefore requested that an effort be made for this very special occasion for a smart turn-out. Those who do not have full uniform should attend with their parents at other locations.

You will, I am sure, appreciate that we wish to make the best impression possible of our scouting and guiding upon our Royal Visitors. For that reason and for our Movement we need as many Scouts, Guides, Cubs and Brownies in full uniform as possible.

Your co-operation will be appreciated.

Grant E. Salmon,
DISTRICT COMMISSIONER.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I was very disappointed when I read in the Irma Times a couple of weeks ago that the Irma Board of Trade had decided to have no parade at the forth coming sports. Just how they arrived at this decision I have no idea. Surely it cannot be from lack of interest altogether. I have talked to several who are not even planning to attend the sports if there is no parade. Further more, with our local Sea Cadets and Cub Pack, as well as the Junior Band, the parade should take on new life and color.

We here at Corner Service, have already made some preparations and have given some thought toward getting ready for the parade so we are doubly disappointed. I wish others would state their views, maybe if enough are interested the Board of Trade will change their decision. I truly believe a parade, such as we have had here in the past is the real beginning to a good sports day.

WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Control of Hawkbeard:

Hawkbeard is the rather tall weed with the yellow flower which is often mistaken for Sow Thistle at first glance. This weed is found along roadsides in hayfields and poorly worked or gravelly fields. It is resistant to 2,4-D but is easily killed by cultivation. As this weed is becoming more common all the time, an extra effort should be made to control it. Proper cultivation in summerfallow fields is effective. Mowing to prevent seed production also gives control as this plant is an annual, so roadsides and grassland can be cleaned up by mowing.

Save Your Hay:

Feed reserves were just about zero when spring came this year, so it would be a good idea to put up all the feed possible this summer. Try to get it up in the best possible condition. Don't cut more than you can rake and put up in a day as hay is spoiled faster lying in the swath than it is standing if it should rain. Don't leave bales lying on the ground as bad weather will seriously deteriorate the feed value even in a bale. Don't overlook slough areas as a source of extra feed which may be needed this winter.

Creep Feed Your Calves:

The practice of creep feeding range calves is proving to be very worth while. Claims of fifty to one hundred pounds extra weight are quite common. In addition there is less set back at weaning time and so better gains through the winter feeding period.

Whole oats is the best grain for creep feeding as oats promote growth and they seem almost palatable to the calves. Plans for a creep feed are available from this office.

Team of experts tour flood area

A four-man investigating team of experts from the provincial government will start a study of the flooded areas in south-eastern Manitoba, Hon. Erick F. Willis, minister of agriculture told a gathering of mayors and reeves of the area Monday (June 22).

The meeting was held to hear briefs from the various areas affected by the heavy rainfall and the subsequent flooding of different rivers and creeks in the districts. Both written and verbal briefs were presented outlining damage in the various communities. The government was represented by Premier Duff Roblin, Mr. Willis, Hon. John Thompson, minister of municipal affairs, Hon. Marcel Boule, provincial secretary, George Collins, deputy minister of public works, Dr. Morley Elliott, deputy minister of health and public welfare, J. A. Griffin, director of water control and conservation in the department of agriculture, J. M. Parker, director of land use and J. W. E. Brako, district engineer.

The investigating team will consist of Mr. Griffin, Mr. Parker, Mr. Brako and K. G. MacQuarrie, consulting sanitary inspector for the department of health and public welfare.

Some of the team has already spent time in the area. It will continue its study until a complete survey has been obtained. In some parts of the area the high level of the water has prevented an assessment of the damage at the present time.

Mr. Willis said the investigating team will treat the whole flooded area on the basis of the facts of the damage.

"We want to be helpful," Mr. Willis said, "and the logical way to do this is to have the investigation conducted by experts. We're going to help as well as we can under the circumstances that exist."

Man. professor addresses arrolologists

Addressing the 14th annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Institute of Agriologists in Swift Current recently, Prof. Sol Sinclair, head of the Department of Agriculture and Economics in the farm management, University of Manitoba, said the most feared outcome of vertical integration is the loss of independence for the farmer.

In his address to 125 agriologists he pointed to developments in the southern United States where broiler producers had integrated and later formed a broilermakers' union.

Prof. Sinclair said integration, however, does not necessarily have to reduce the farmer to such a status. "In the first place, if it reduces risks, increases his efficiency and thereby in turn increases his income, it does provide the farmer and his family with certain definite advantages in the way of making a living."

Prof. Sinclair said one of the effects on the family farm from a broad development of vertical integration will be a large increase in the size of the business operated by one family.

"This need not imply a great increase in acreage in all cases, but it would imply an increase in the volume of production per farm unit and a much greater capital investment."

The labor employed per farm unit will not change much. With modern methods it is estimated that 60,000 farmers could raise all the pigs now produced in the United States by 2,500,000 farmers.

He said each integrated hog producer could replace the output of 40 existing farms. The probable longer-run result would be a great reduction in the number of farms and a substantial increase in the volume of business done by those that remain.

Farmers who do not integrate or who expand their scale of operations themselves to an efficient unit, would be under increasing economic pressure as the application of advanced technologies increases the volume of output and lowers the price per unit.

Prof. Sinclair pointed to other long-run effects of integration. "If it is successful in achieving its objectives, then there should be considerable economic gain to the farming industry."

"This could mean increased returns per capita in agriculture and a more rapid adjustment of the industry to technological change. On the other hand, it will also mean a decline in the total number of people in the farming community. This will mean a decline in the political strength of the farming community."

On the question of "who is going to integrate whom?" Prof. Sinclair said farmer co-operatives can be the integrators, and in so doing retain for the farmer control of his farm business and gain for him the greatest return from the sale of his products.

"In fact, it appears most urgent for farmers today that they take a fresh look at this form of business organization. Taken together with the available marketing legislation, they may very well bring agriculture through to a new place of operations which will place it on a par in many respects with other industries."

Co-operatives, in this new situation, could repeat their former usefulness as counterbalancing powers against the power of large scale vertically integrated purchasing organizations, he said.

Officers of the I.E.A. elected at the annual meeting are: president, T. R. Melville-Ness, Saskatoon; vice-president, Herb Dow, Regina; registrar, Dr. M. Laster, Saskatoon; new councillors: A. W. Crookshanks, Indian Head; W. Hamilton, Regina; W. K. Janzen, Saskatoon; J. T. Kyle, Regina; C. M. Peifer, Nipawin; C. R. Richards, Melfort; H. Ukrainetz, Scott. Councillors previously elected are:

Big poultry output could bring on fire sale prices

Stepping up production of a certain type of food too far ahead of consumption only invites "fire sale" prices, E. D. Bonnyman, Poultry Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, has warned.

He reminded the Eastern Ontario Poultry Producers' Association that while it requires almost 15 billion pounds of food to feed the nation every year, poultry meats and eggs make up a very small portion of the total volume. He suggested that a balance must be maintained between production and consumption.

Mr. Bonnyman said production of poultry meats and eggs has been increasing every year and last year's figures were the highest on record. The trend is continuing.

Up to May 23, broiler markets had reached 73.7 million pounds—an increase of 15 million pounds over the same period in 1958. There was a potential increase in turkey tonnage of 14 million pounds for the same period over one year ago, and egg marketings through registered grading stations were up by 8 million dozens over the same period in 1958.

He emphasized the keen competition among foods for the consumer's dollar, pointing out that the so-called heavy meats—beef, pork, fish, mutton and lamb—make up 165.3 pounds of the total per capita consumption. Poultry meat accounts for 22.9 pounds and eggs, 35 pounds.

Per capita spendable income has a bearing on food consumption, he said. It has been rising steadily during the past few years until it reached a high of $1,338 in 1958. Consideration should be given to:

(1) The question of supply; (2) Demand; (3) Competition from other foods; and (4) Per capita spendable income. In the case of poultry meat and eggs, it is a question whether to cut down on the supply or step up consumption to take care of the extra supply.

"While the consumption of various foods may vary from year to year, the overall consumption remains constant," he explained. "The food item attractively prepared in convenient form that will produce the diet at competitive prices is the one that makes inroads on other foods and gets a larger share of the consumer's money."

And, said Mr. Bonnyman, the Agricultural Stabilization Board had purchased 685,400 cases (20,562,000 dozen) eggs up to May 23 this year, compared with 365,000 cases for the whole of 1958.

He emphasized the keen competition among foods for the consumer's dollar, pointing out that the so-called heavy meats—beef,

No coodition

The Leader of the Saskatchewan Progressive Conservative Party, Mr. Martin Pederson, emphatically repudiated the advances that have been made in various constituencies by the Leader of the Liberal party, Mr. Hamilton McDonald, for an amalgamation between Conservatives and Liberal Parties in an effort to defeat the CCF government in Saskatchewan.

Mr. Pederson states that his Party flatly refuses to take part in any deal. They will fight the next provincial election on a positive and constructive platform which will be placed before the electorate by 55 candidates carrying the Conservative Party standard. He feels that this platform will gain wide acceptance, and will prove to the people of this province that the Conservative Party are the only alternative to the present government. He further states that the ineptitude of the Liberal opposition, both in the House and on the hustings, in the past 15 years, proves beyond a shadow of a doubt, that they lack the ability to replace the CCF government in Saskatchewan.

Zesty salads

Add chilled orange pieces to tossed green, chef's, waldorf and cole slaw salads... gives a tangy, refreshing note you'll enjoy.

Martinate green onions in lemon juice while tossing the rest of the green salad. Add onions at last minute for subdued flavor.

To keep salad greens crisp, freshen in cold water with a little lemon juice.

Fresh orange slices and creamy cottage cheese makes a tempting salad for those on reducing diets.

Stuffed cooked prunes or dates go well with large orange slices for a quick, nutritious salad.

TAKEN OFF PAYROLLS

Due to the decline in business, employment on Canada's two major railways dropped to a 30-year low in 1958 as more than 18,000 workers were taken off the payroll.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Kowalski of the Hatherleigh district have a different story this week about a wild duck. They noticed a duck on Sunday fly into the six-foot chimney of their summer kitchen. Investigating the strange action, the Kowalskis found that a mother duck had made herself a nest at the foot of the chimney and laid six eggs in it. Just how the mother duck plans to lead her brood out of the chimney no one seems to know.

In the meantime, the Kowalskis are anxious to use the cook stove which is quite impossible as long as the mother duck and her eggs continue to claim occupancy.

6,500 Reasons

Why Farm Families Should Practise Safety!

Last year 71 Saskatchewan farm residents, including 16 children, were killed in farm-work accidents. Some 6,500 more persons suffered injuries necessitating hospital treatment.

Machinery accidents resulted in 2,000 hospital admissions. The victims included 244 children, of whom 83 were under five years of age!

The Department of Public Health, joined by other agencies, has brought these facts to public attention and has tried to induce farm residents to exercise greater care. Ultimately, safety lies in one's own hands, and, in the case of children, the responsibility rests upon farm parents.

Act now to prevent this needless slaughter and mutilation. In your homes, on the farms, and in the communities, observe

KEEPING UP-TO-DATE ON VARIETIES

One way to judge the suitability of any variety of grain for a particular district is to see it growing side by side with many others. This is possible by paying a visit to one of the many "Crop Testing Plots" Demonstration Plots planted this year not only by a number of our Elevator Agents but also by interested farmers throughout Western Canada.

Your Seale Agent will be pleased to tell you if there is one of these plots in your area.

ALBERTA'S Rural Electrification goes forward FULL POWER AHEAD

Rural power lines

now carry better farming

— and better living

— to more than 72 per cent of all Alberta farms.

Where power goes . . . farm profit grows.

Power on the farm boosts its market value by more than the cost of the service installation. For power is the "wired hand" that sets a new high in farm efficiency. And power in the farm home means an unequalled standard of 20th century living!

Little wonder that rural electrification is spreading at increasing speed. At the start of 1959 no less than 72 per cent of Alberta's farms were being served with low cost power through local REAs.

To keep the power-flow coming, Calgary Power Ltd. maintains four and a half thousand miles of main transmission lines, plus three thousand miles of distribution lines to supply farmer-owned REA services. Calgary Power's overall facilities represent a multi-million dollar investment.

We're going forward . . . FULL POWER AHEAD!

SAFETY MAKES SENSE

NATIONAL FARM SAFETY WEEK

JULY 20-27, 1959

IT'S NEVER TOO EARLY

TO PRACTICE Safety

Sharpe's 25th Anniversary

This year, 1959, sees W. J. Sharpe & Co. Ltd. celebrating their 25th anniversary in the buying of eggs and poultry in Saskatchewan. W. J. Sharpe founded the present business in 1934 commencing with an egg grading station and a couple of employees. Previously he had spent 13 years in the produce business with different packing houses. The business has now grown to a point where it employs 60 employees during the fall season.

W. G. (Bill) Sharpe graduated in Commerce from the University of Toronto in 1951 and returned to join his father in the business. Bill Sr. and Bill Jr. now operate one of the most up-to-date plants in western Canada. They have experienced employees who are in a position to give the Producer advice in every phase of the Poultry Industry. Included on their staff are Tom Boulter, Wally Robertson and Cliff Boli. These men have had practical experience raising poultry as well as can answer most any question that a Producer would want to ask.

Sharpe's egg grading station now is fully equipped to handle ungraded egg shipments throughout the year. Experienced candlers and packers using up-to-date equipment candle and pack eggs for local as well as export shipments.

During the spring Sharpe's operate a modern hatchery. Chicken hatching eggs are contracted for with producers in the area and hatches are taken off twice weekly. Day old chicks are sent out when hatched and surplus hatcheries are held in electric brooders until sold. Turkey poulters are also hatched from imported American eggs.

With the increased demand for Broiler chicks, Sharpe's are hatching Broiler Strain Chicks the year around. Sharpe's obtained the franchise for DeKalb Chicks in Regina. DeKalb "101" are proving very popular with egg producers in the area.

Sharpe's Eviscerating Plant was opened October 8, 1957. Up until that time their company was engaged in the undrawn poultry business. This meant that when the birds left their plant they had simply been killed and the feathers removed.

Sharpe's plant is one of nine Poultry Eviscerating Plants in Saskatchewan under direct supervision of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Health of Animals Division. They have a qualified veterinarian and an assistant at all times in this plant and it is their job to see that the birds passing along the eviscerating line are free from disease, that plant cleanliness is maintained, and that the entire operation assures the Consumer of wholesome poultry reaching her kitchen.

When the birds arrive at Sharpe's plant the producer's name is recorded and the birds are weighed in the case of chicken and fowl and the turkeys counted. The birds are then hung by the feet in the shackles on the killing line. They are rendered unconscious by an electric knife before killing. When the birds have finished bleeding they are submerged in hot water to loosen the feathers and make picking a lot easier. They are then placed in a revolving picker which removes virtually all the feathers from the birds. There are pinners who remove any feathers left by the machine around the hocks and behind the wings.

The birds are then weighed for buying and transferred to the Eviscerating Line and again hung in shackles only this time they are hung by the hocks. The birds are now carried on the line up to the main floor for eviscerating.

To follow along the Eviscerating Line now we see that the birds are first cut at the back of the neck and the oil sack at the tail removed. The crops are pulled and the bird is now hung also by the neck and we have what is known as "three point suspension". The abdominal cuts are made and the viscera removed but left hanging for the Inspector to check the bird for disease. If the Veterinarian feels that the bird is diseased or otherwise unfit for food he condemns it and the bird is thrown out and burned on the premises.

The Giblets — heart, liver and gizzard are removed next. The heart is trimmed and washed along with the liver. The giblets are cut open, thoroughly washed and the inner membrane removed. The remaining viscera is removed and the inside of the birds are then thoroughly "vacuumed". They have a vacuum machine which removes the lungs and kidneys.

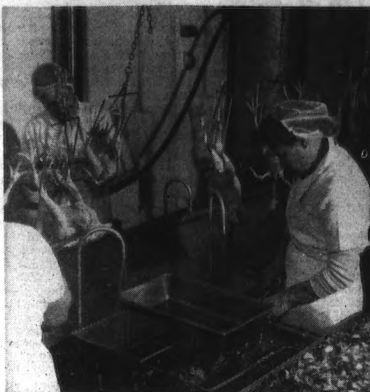

Heads and necks are then removed from the birds. The birds are first washed on the inside with a hose and scraper. Any remaining viscera is here removed and the final check is made. The birds then go through a shower to wash off the outside. The final operator takes the birds off the line and cuts the legs off. In the case of

The birds and giblets are now turkeys most tendons are drawn as the feet are removed. They are placed in ice water and remain there overnight for packaging the next day. This chilling process not only assures the customer that the poultry has been properly cooled and the animal heat removed but it is also during this period that the birds are tenderized.

The next day the poultry is then graded according to Federal Government standards for poultry grading and the individual grade and weight is marked on the plastic bag into which the birds are placed. All the air is taken out of the bag, a metal clip fastens the bag and any excess bag is cut off and discarded.

The product next goes through a dip tank which shrinks the plastic bag and gives that "second skin" appearance. The birds are then sorted according to weight and grade and placed in boxes for shipment to the freezers where the birds are quick frozen and stored for further shipment.

In the case of their ice packed fresh product the birds are graded and weighed together and the individual bird is tagged with a breast tag indicating the grade and name of the plant. The birds are then packed in paper lined baskets and the weight and description of the product marked on the outside of the basket. They manufacture their own ice for chilling and ice packing the poultry. They have installed an incinerator for burning any condemned carcasses or other pro-

Giblets are separated and the hearts and livers are carefully washed. Operator in background is removing kidneys and other loose viscera with a vacuum nozzle.

Birds are graded according to government standards and are either packed for freezing in plastic bags or tagged with a metal breast tag as shown and are sold locally, packed in hampers and well fed.

A view of Sharpe's Modern Eviscerating Plant in Regina. After birds are killed and the feathers removed they are made ducts which are condemned by their plant inspectors.

Where and how does the product eventually reach the consumer? Product destined for the Saskatchewan markets is sold direct to the retail outlets. Product exported out of the province is sold through Brokers with whom they maintain connections. They are constantly in touch with Brokers throughout Canada whose job it is to bring prospective carload buyers and themselves together. Carloads when sold are shipped under refrigeration to markets principally in Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal. They also have made shipments to the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland.

Gizzards are split and washed and the inner lining removed by machine. Finished birds are placed in large tanks, covered with ice and allowed to chill.

Chicks have received their final check and are boxed ready to be shipped to customers.

Chicks when taken from the incubator are sorted and boxed.

Here you can see one of Sharpe's baby chick hatches ready to come out of the incubator.
